Acupuncture and Traditional Chinese Medicine

Initial treatment and consultation for 90min	£110
60 minutes thereafter	£90

(TCM) are centuries old effective natural and holistic treatments.

Acupuncture heals your body based on the theory of smooth flow of blood and energy (Qi) to be disease free, produce dopamine and endorphin hormones, reduce inflammation and pain.

According to Chinese theory, we're made up of the 5 Elements:

Wood, Earth, Metal, Fire and Water. They're our creative and controlling energies and ideally should all be in balance. The Elements out of balance are known as the causative factor and become apparent in many ways. The causative factor is a POSITIVE thing. When you come for treatment and you're out of balance, then these problems will become evident to the trained practitioner. Your 5 Element Acupuncturist will be able to diagnose problems within you by evaluating your colour, sound, odour or emotion. This enables them to put together a treatment plan that will treat your causative factor or what Element you represent. This ancient system enables the body/mind/spirit to heal itself, as far as nature will allow. This principle of traditional acupuncture is important, because it means the underlying cause of the disease is being dealt with rather than the symptom merely being swept under the carpet, only to reappear in the future. Not only dealing with your condition by restoring the overall balance of energy, 5 Element Acupuncture may help you to feel better in a general way, by promoting an improved quality of life.
